The term "neo Stalinist state class ethnicity consensus" encapsulates a complex and often controversial framework that has emerged in certain modern states, reflecting a synthesis of authoritarian governance, class interests, ethnic identity politics, and a purported consensus on state ideology reminiscent of Stalinist principles. This concept is rooted in a reevaluation and adaptation of Stalinist strategies and rhetoric, tailored to contemporary geopolitical and socio-economic contexts. It involves the consolidation of power through state-controlled narratives, suppression of dissent, and the strategic management of ethnic and social divisions to maintain a unified, centrally controlled political order. This article explores the origins, characteristics, mechanisms, and implications of this phenomenon, providing a comprehensive understanding of its multifaceted nature.

forms of authoritarianism that drew inspiration from Stalinist practices. Some regimes adopted a "neo" version of Stalinism, emphasizing:

- State sovereignty and territorial integrity
- Nationalist narratives intertwined with socialist rhetoric
- Control over ethnic minorities to prevent secession or unrest
- State-centric economic policies favoring certain social classes

This reconfiguration often aimed at reinforcing central authority amidst internal divisions and external pressures.
